Cathodic Electrodeposition of primer coat

Monocoque Body construction

- The Traveller is originally designed and produced by Mercedes Benz Ag Germany as the T-1 Transporter; it is now manufactured in India by Force Motors at their ultra modern plant in Pithampur, near Indore in Madhya Pradesh. The vehicle has been thoroughly upgraded to meet current emission norms and to perform under Indian conditions.
- Unlike others, this is not an ambulance built on a truck chassis. On account of its monocoque body construction and robotic welding the Traveller is a class apart - in terms of body durability, total safety and car like ride quality. Cathodic Electrodeposition of primer coat ensures superior corrosion protection and enhances paint gloss retention.
- The Traveller is available with turbo engine options. The BS-IV Compliant TD 2200 Common rail engine and the BS-III compliant TD 2650 Turbo charged inter cooled diesel engine.
- Some elliptical leaf spring suspension in front as well as rear for smooth ride irrespective of road conditions. New improved and larger front disc and rear drum brakes ensure safe and smooth stopping. Best in class, handling & safety.
